C.3	Mechanisms for employee participation should be permitted to develop.	Guiding Reference	Yes/No	Explain/Supporting Documents

C.3.1	Does the company explicitly disclose the policies and practices on health, safety and welfare for its employees?	OECD Principle IV (C): The degree to which employees participate in corporate governance depends on national laws and practices, and may vary from company to company as well. In the context of corporate governance, mechanisms for participation may benefit companies directly as well as indirectly through the readiness by employees to invest in firm specific skills. Examples of mechanisms for employee participation include: employee representation on boards; and governance processes such as work councils that consider employee viewpoints in certain key decisions. International conventions and national norms also recognize the rights of employees to information, consultation and negotiation. With respect to performance enhancing mechanisms, employee stock ownership plans or other profit sharing mechanisms are to be found in many countries. Pension commitments are also often an element of the relationship between the company and its past and present employees. Where such commitments involve establishing an independent fund, its trustees should be independent of the company's management and manage the fund for all beneficiaries.	Yes	2022 Annual Report, Human Capital, pages 36 https://www.global-imi.com/investors/annual-reports Governance Report, Archive, Role of Stakeholders, Data relating to health, safety and welfare of its employees https://www.global-imi.com/sites/default/files/ROLE%20OF%20STAKEHOLDERS.pdf

E.2.3	Does the company have a process to implement and monitor compliance with the code/s of ethics or conduct?	The board has a key role in setting the ethical tone of a company, not only by its own actions, but also in appointing and overseeing key executives and consequently the management in general. High ethical standards are in the long term interests of the company as a means to make it credible and trustworthy, not only in day-to-day operations but also with respect to longer term commitments. To make the objectives of the board clear and operational, many companies have found it useful to develop company codes of conduct based on, inter alia, professional standards and sometimes broader codes of behaviour. The latter might include a voluntary commitment by the company (including its subsidiaries) to comply with the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises which reflect all four principles contained in the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Labour Rights. Company-wide codes serve as a standard for conduct by both the board and key executives, setting the framework for the exercise of judgement in dealing with varying and often conflicting constituencies. At a minimum, the ethical code should set clear limits on the pursuit of private interests, including dealings in the shares of the company. 		Where justified in terms of the size of the company and its board, the use of committees may improve the work of the board. In order to evaluate the merits of board committees it is important that the market receives a full and clear picture of their purpose, duties and composition. Such information is particularly important in the many jurisdictions where boards have established independent audit committees with powers to oversee the relationship with the external auditor and to act in many cases independently. Audit committees should also be able to oversee the effectiveness and integrity of the internal control system. Other such committees include those dealing with nomination, compensation, and risk. 	It is regarded as good practice for boards to develop and disclose a remuneration policy statement covering board members and key executives. Such policy statements specify the relationship between remuneration and performance, and include measurable standards that emphasise the longer run interests of the company over short term considerations. Policy statements generally tend to set conditions for payments to board members for extra-board activities, such as consulting. They also often specify terms to be observed by board members and key executives about holding and trading the stock of the company, and the procedures to be followed in granting and re- pricing of options. In some countries, policy also covers the payments to be made when hiring and/or terminating the contract of an executive. In large companies, it is considered good practice that remuneration policy and contracts for board members and key executives be handled by a special committee of the board comprising either wholly or a majority of independent directors and excluding executives that serve on each other's remuneration committees, which could lead to conflicts of interest.		Company Website, Governance, Board Matters, Board Committees and Attendance, IMI_2022 Board Committee Meetings Attendance https://www.global-imi.com/sites/default/files/IMI_2022%20Board%20Committee%20Meetings%20Attendance_0.pdf Company Website, Governance, Board Matters, IMI Charter of Compensation Committee https://www.global-imi.com/sites/default/files/IMI_Charter%20of%20Compensation%20Committee.pdf

Board Chairman
E.4.1	Do different persons assume the roles of chairman and CEO?	G20/OECD PRINCIPLE VI: Responsibilities of the Board (E) The board should be able to exercise objective independent judgement on corporate affairs. In a number of countries with single tier board systems, the objectivity of the board and its independence from management may be strengthened by the separation of the role of chief executive and chairman, or, if these roles are combined, by designating a lead non-executive director to convene or chair sessions of the outside directors. Separation of the two posts may be regarded as good practice, as it can help to achieve an appropriate balance of power, increase accountability and improve the board's capacity for decision making independent of management.	Yes	2022 Annual Report, Board of Directors, pages 24-29 https://www.global-imi.com/investors/annual-reports Company Website, Governance, Board Matters, 2022 Board of Directors and Key Officers https://www.global-imi.com/sites/default/files/IMI_2022%20Board%20of%20Directors%20and%20Key%20Officers.pdf

E.4.2	Is the chairman an independent director/commissioner?	UK Code (2016) A.3.1 The chairman should on appointment meet the independence criteria set out in B.1.1 below. A chief executive should not go on to be chairman of the same company. If, exceptionally, a board decides that a chief executive should become chairman, the board should consult major shareholders in advance and should set out its reasons to shareholders at the time of the appointment and in the next Annual Report.	No	2022 Annual Report, Profile of Mr. Delfin L. Lead Independent Director
E.4.5	If the Chairman is not independent, has the Board appointed a Lead/Senior Independent Director and has his/her role been defined?	King Code 2009 2. Boards and directors Role and function of the board - The board should elect a chairman of the board who is an independent non-executive director. The CEO of the company should not also fulfill the role of the chairman of the board 2.16.3 A lead independent director should be appointed in the case where an executive chairman is appointed or where the chairman is not independent or conflicted. ICGN (2014): 2.2 Lead independent director The chair should be independent on the date of appointment. If the chair is not independent, the company should adopt an appropriate structure to mitigate any potential challenges arising from this, such as the appointment of a lead independent director. The board should explain the reasons why this leadership structure is appropriate and keep the structure under review. A lead independent director also provides shareholders and directors with a valuable channel of communication should they wish to discuss concerns relating to the chair	Yes	Mr. Edgar O.
